BRITAIN'S RACING MUSEUM IS set to open its doors in 2012. The new museum, located at Silverstone, will house a collection of historic racing cars, including the 1957 Formula 1 car driven by Jim Clark, and the 1970s Formula 1 car driven by Jackie Stewart. The museum will also feature a permanent exhibition on the life and career of the legendary driver, Sir Jackie Stewart.

WORLD RACING CAR TRAINING Ray Mallock ran out of one of the most famous corners in his father's early Formula Junior car at Silverstone last weekend. The 84-year-old Mallock, who has been racing since the 1950s, was driving a 1957 Formula Junior car when he crashed. He was not hurt, but the car was damaged. Mallock said he was surprised to find the car still in one piece after 50 years.

BRITCAR RETURNS TO SPLIT-GRID FORMAT

BRITCAR WILL BE BACK TO its original 1970s and 1980s split-grid format from next season. The CTC and the British Car Club have agreed to split the grid into two sections, with the faster cars starting on the inside and the slower cars on the outside. This will allow the faster cars to get a better start and reduce the risk of accidents.

NEW V8 SERIES TARGETS 2012 CLASSIC

THE NEW V8 SERIES IS targeting a 2012 classic. The series will feature a mix of historic and modern cars, including the 1970s and 1980s. The series will be run by the British Car Club and the CTC. The series will be a great way to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the British Car Club.
